

“I’d buy a Yamaha RD125. I’ve had pretty good luck with mine.”

“I’m Kent Andersson. I’ve won two consecutive World Road Racing Championships on my Yamaha 125. I’ve been kissed by the most beautiful trophy ladies in all of Europe. I’ve won many pesetas, pounds, francs, krona and schillings.

“So if you’re thinking of buying a 125 street machine, you know that I’m going to recommend the Yamaha. It’s called the RD125, and it’s a full first cousin of my Yamaha 125 road racer.

“The RD125 has the same basic 2-stroke twin engine. It has the same basic frame. It has the same crankcase and crank shaft. It has the same type double leading shoe front brakes. It has the same basic gearbox design. The RD125 is fast. It’s a joy to handle. And it’s made by the people who own just about every manufacturer’s championship in road racing.

“If I were looking for a quick, reliable, economical 125 street machine, I would look no further.”

“I’d buy a Yamaha.”
Someday you’ll own a Yamaha.
