

When they graduate they will all have

Some in communications. Some in engineering. Some in artillery. Others in ordnance, transport, or intelligence. Or any one of many other different careers available to an officer in the Army.

But whichever career you seek, we can promise you this: there'll be more to do than just sitting on your backside pushing paper. And that's more than can be said for most other professions.

However, first you must graduate.

WHAT OTHER PROFESSION OFFERS A CHOICE OF SO MANY CAREERS?

The officer cadets pictured are on exercises from the Royal Military College, Duntroon. There they are taking degrees as various as Arts, Science or Engineering. But in between times there's some military activity.

Doing your degree at Duntroon is not quite the same as doing it at a civilian University. It's better. For a start, you're paid a salary. You also have a job guaranteed at the end of it.

And, unlike most other professions, you have 4 years in which to decide on your career path. It is only in your final year at the Royal Military College that you choose which corps you wish to join.

To enter Duntroon you must be an Australian Citizen between the ages of 16½ and 19½ on January 1st of your year of entry. You must also meet the Army's other selection requirements, have matriculated or be doing your matriculation this year.

graduate as officers different careers.

If you're not doing your matriculation until next year, you may be eligible for a Royal Military College, Duntroon scholarship to help you through.

Either way, ring an Army Careers Adviser or fill out the coupon and we'll send you more information.
